Steve Curl graduated with a Bachelor's Degree in Psychology with minors in Art and Journalism from Denison University in Granville, Ohio. He furthered his art studies at the Academy of Art College in San Francisco, the Atlin Art Center in Atlin, B.C., the Taos Institute for the Arts in Taos, NM, and the Ah Haa School in Telluride, CO. Steve continues to study with master artists in watercolor and pastel workshops. He is a well-known local artist who has had his illustrations and cartoons printed in many publications including the local Palo Alto Weekly and the Palo Alto Daily News. He is currently the Editorial Cartoonist for the Palo Alto Daily News. In addition to teaching at the Pacific Art League, he also teaches at the Palo Alto Art Center, the Ah Haa School in Telluride, CO, Geronimo Educational Study Tours in Bisbee, AZ, La Entrada & Oak Knoll Schools in Menlo Park, and the Odyssey School in San Mateo. He really likes his life, and is currently learning to play the guitar. It's not as easy for him as visual art but he still likes it. To see more of Steve's works, visit his website at:

ALL STUDENT LEVELS: Here is a class that gets you out IN IT! Watercolor is a wonderful, simple, and portable medium. It is perfect for capturing quick, colorful sketches and small paintings on your hikes and travels. Painting “en plein aire” allows you to see true colors and light, and teaches you to paint what you see before you.

During this two day workshop, you will learn basic watercolor skills, proper use of the medium, and how to prepare for outdoor painting. Supplies and preparation for painting outside will be covered. One day will be spent on location at Foothills Park in Palo Alto with a concluding critique at the end of the day.

During both days, the instructor will work individually with students on composition, design, mixing color that you see, using flat and gradated washes, and how to paint outside in an efficient, effective and comfortable manner.

Steve will be giving an watercolor demonstration on Saturday, March 20th, from 1:00 - 3:00 PM at the Society of Western Artists Gallery in Redwood City.
